SANTUBONG MANGROVE CRUISE

These cruises typically explore the primary water routes of the park, with most lasting around half a day. They often begin by traveling up the main river before branching into smaller rivers and creeks within the park. Some tours include a visit to the nearby Malay fishing village just outside the park, while others head to Santubong and its estuaries to seek out Irrawaddy dolphins. Some may also navigate through mangrove-covered channels to observe wildlife like proboscis monkeys, crocodiles, and fireflies, especially during night-time excursions.

JONG'S CROCODILE FARM

This is the largest crocodile farm in Malaysia and one of the biggest in Southeast Asia. Its main goals are to protect and breed crocodiles and to teach people about these interesting reptiles. Visitors can expect to see various types of crocodiles, such as the powerful saltwater crocodile and the smaller African dwarf crocodile. The farm offers a safe place for crocodiles, letting visitors get a close look at them. There are feeding times where visitors can watch the crocodiles' strong jaws and feeding habits. Additionally, the farm has exhibits with snakes, lizards, and tortoises, giving visitors a chance to learn about different reptile species. They also host shows and demonstrations where skilled handlers display their expertise in handling and interacting with crocodiles.

RM420 p.p*2D1N IBAN LONGHOUSE ADVENTURE

The Iban tribe of Borneo has a unique and fascinating culture. While they were once known as headhunters, those days are mostly in the past. Some Iban still maintain their traditional way of life in communal longhouses, where many families share a large space. Visiting an authentic longhouse is a must-do experience in Sarawak, as it provides insight into the Iban culture. In the Central Region of Sarawak, an Iban longhouse is a major tourist attraction. Other ethnic groups also live in longhouses, each with their own customs for welcoming guests. Traditionally, the Iban don't shake hands to greet visitors, but nowadays, it's widely accepted.

RM680 p.p*2D1N BAKO NATIONAL PARK ADVENTURE(subject to room availability)*

Established in 1957, Bako National Park holds the title of Malaysia's oldest national park and is celebrated for its diverse ecosystems and abundant wildlife. Encompassing mangrove swamps, dense forests, and unique limestone formations, the park is home to a wide range of plant and animal species. Its dramatic coastline, marked by towering cliffs and sea stacks, adds to its scenic allure. The park is famous for its proboscis monkeys, easily identified by their distinctive noses, but visitors can also encounter macaques, monitor lizards, and a variety of bird species. Well-maintained trails offer opportunities for exploration, leading hikers through lush jungles, across streams, and to secluded beaches. Bako National Park is a testament to Malaysia's dedication to conservation, providing a protected environment for visitors to appreciate the beauty and diversity of untouched nature.
